FOREST ADMINISTRATION IN FINLAND

Cultural heritage in the Finnish private forests

- Private forestry in Finland today takes traditionally in consideration economical aspects/growth, biodiversity and ecological issues
- Work with developing quality systems usually starts in society with economy and goes towards Environmental and Social responsibilities
- Cultural heritage objects in forests are part of the cultural/social dimension. This dimension can give the private forestry an additional value with secondary occupations

How do we define a cultural heritage object in forestland?

- Ancient heritage objects are mostly more than 100 years
- Finnish National Board of Antiques decides on status of preservation
- Cultural heritage objects and sites are mostly younger and lack status of preservation
- Cultural heritage objects and sites can be interesting but are not always nationally important
- The forest owner decides if there will be restoration, preservation, use or activities on the site

Results

- Cultural heritage in forests is now mentioned in the Finnish National Forest programmes
- Inventory of cultural heritage objects has started in state forests and is to be done in private forests like in Estonia
- What will be the role and interest of private forestry?
- Financing and responsible organization?

Thank you!

- For the cooperation NBA, Metsähallitus, Forest Centers, Forest Associations
- NGO:s and forest owners
- Project partners RMK, TTS

Our goal is that you can walk through the forest with a smile.
